HISTORY OF LONE MOUNTAIN RANCH

For over 100 years, Lone Mountain Ranch has been a historic symbol of the American West. It played a role in the early days of Yellowstone Park, the formation of the town of Big Sky, the evolution of ranching and logging in the Northern Rockies and the preservation of the American West's spectacular wilderness. The Ranch was homesteaded by Clarence Lytle in 1915 as a working cattle and hay cutting ranch. A number of the current structures were originally built during the Ranch's first decade.

My favorite state has not yet been invented.
It will be called Montana, and it will be perfect.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN, 1864

In 1927, the Ranch was sold to a Chicago paper mill executive, J. Fred Butler, who transformed the Ranch into a private vacation retreat for his family. In the 1930s, the next generation of the Butler family opened the Ranch to outside guests drawn to its spectacular natural setting and authentic western atmosphere. Following the Second World War, Lone Mountain Ranch was used as the base of a logging operation but in 1955 was converted back to a guest ranch.

In the early 1970s, the Ranch was purchased by a group of influential figures and investors developing the town of Big Sky. News anchor and Montana native Chet Huntley, ski legend Warren Miller and senior executives from Chrysler Corporation, Conoco and others entertained visitors at Lone Mountain Ranch and used the Ranch as their headquarters. In 1977, the Schaap family bought the Ranch to develop its potential as a mecca for cross country skiing. Over the next thirty years, they refined the Ranch's year-round guest experience, building upon the Ranch's rich heritage, natural beauty and numerous amenities. They also succeeded in solidifying Lone Mountain Ranch's position as a premier Nordic ski destination when the Ranch was rated #1 in North America by Cross Country Skiing Magazine.

In 2013, the Ranch was purchased by Auric Road who have restored and repositioned the property as a world class luxury guest ranch which is a frequent host to leading business executives, political leaders, celebrities and thought leaders from around the globe.

LMR CABINS: PROPERTY MAP

Steeped in more than a century of Montana heritage, Lone Mountain Ranch stands as a living testament to the enduring spirit of the American West. Nestled in the heart of Big Sky Country, where the Gallatin Range meets the wilderness corridors leading to Yellowstone National Park, the ranch has welcomed travelers, wranglers, and wanderers since the early 1900s. Each cabin, crafted from hand-hewn logs and lovingly restored, tells its own story – a blend of pioneer grit, Western craftsmanship, and modern comfort. Here, beneath the wide Montana sky, life slows to the pace of the land. The scent of pine, the call of elk in the distance, and the flicker of a woodstove at dusk connect guests to something timeless – something uniquely Montana.

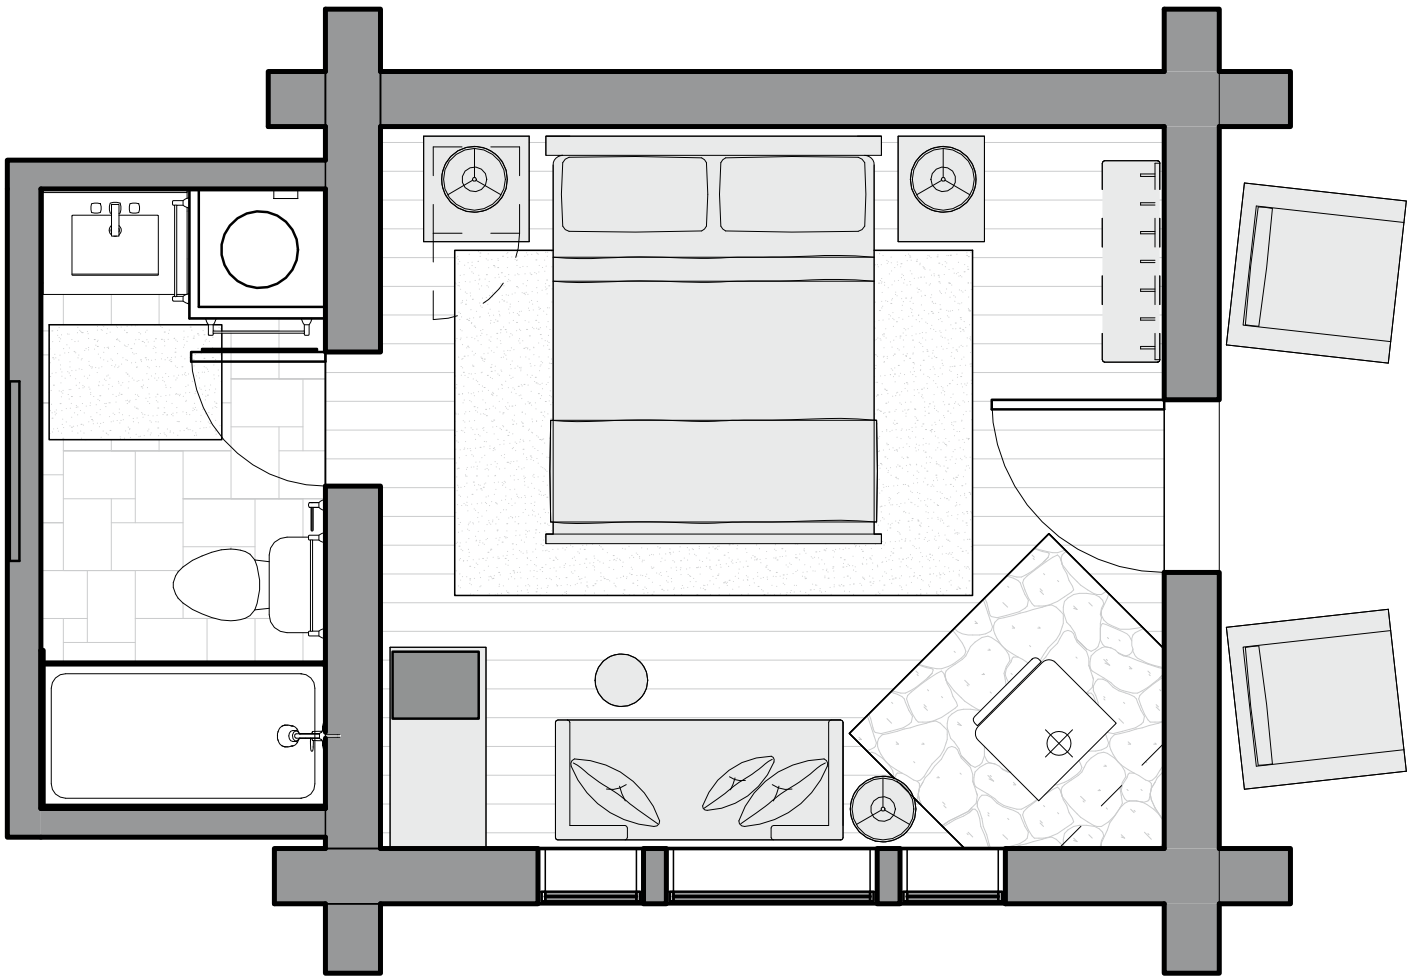

LMR CABINS: ONE BEDROOMS

Chipmunk

1 BEDROOM | 1 BATHROOM | SLEEPS 2

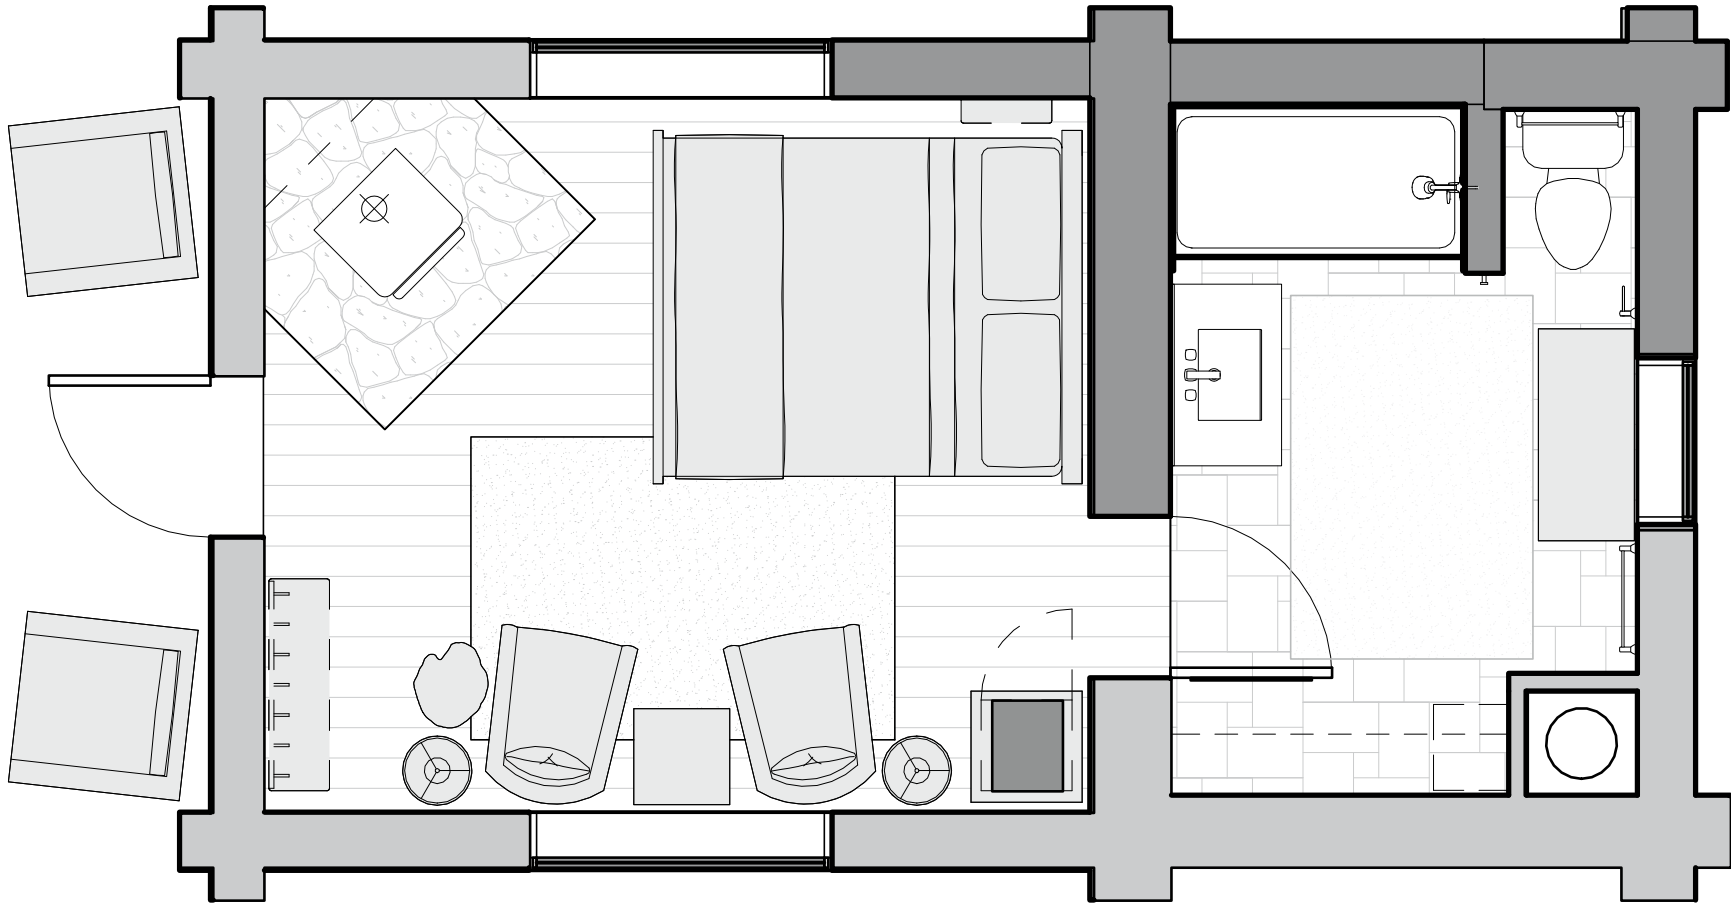

Built from lodgepole pine in 1927, Chipmunk was the ranch’s original “Cook’s Cabin.” Set along the banks North Fork Creek, its weathered logs bear the marks of nearly a century of Montana seasons – long winters blanketed in snow, golden summers alive with birdsong. Inside, the cozy layout offers warmth and comfort with a queen bed positioned to overlook North Fork Creek, sitting area, woodstove, and full bath with tub/shower combination. Step onto the porch at sunrise to watch mist rise from the creek, or at dusk as the Big Sky deepens into indigo. Chipmunk is an intimate refuge where the rhythm of the mountains replaces the rush of time.

Porcupine

1 BEDROOM | 1 BATHROOM | SLEEPS 2

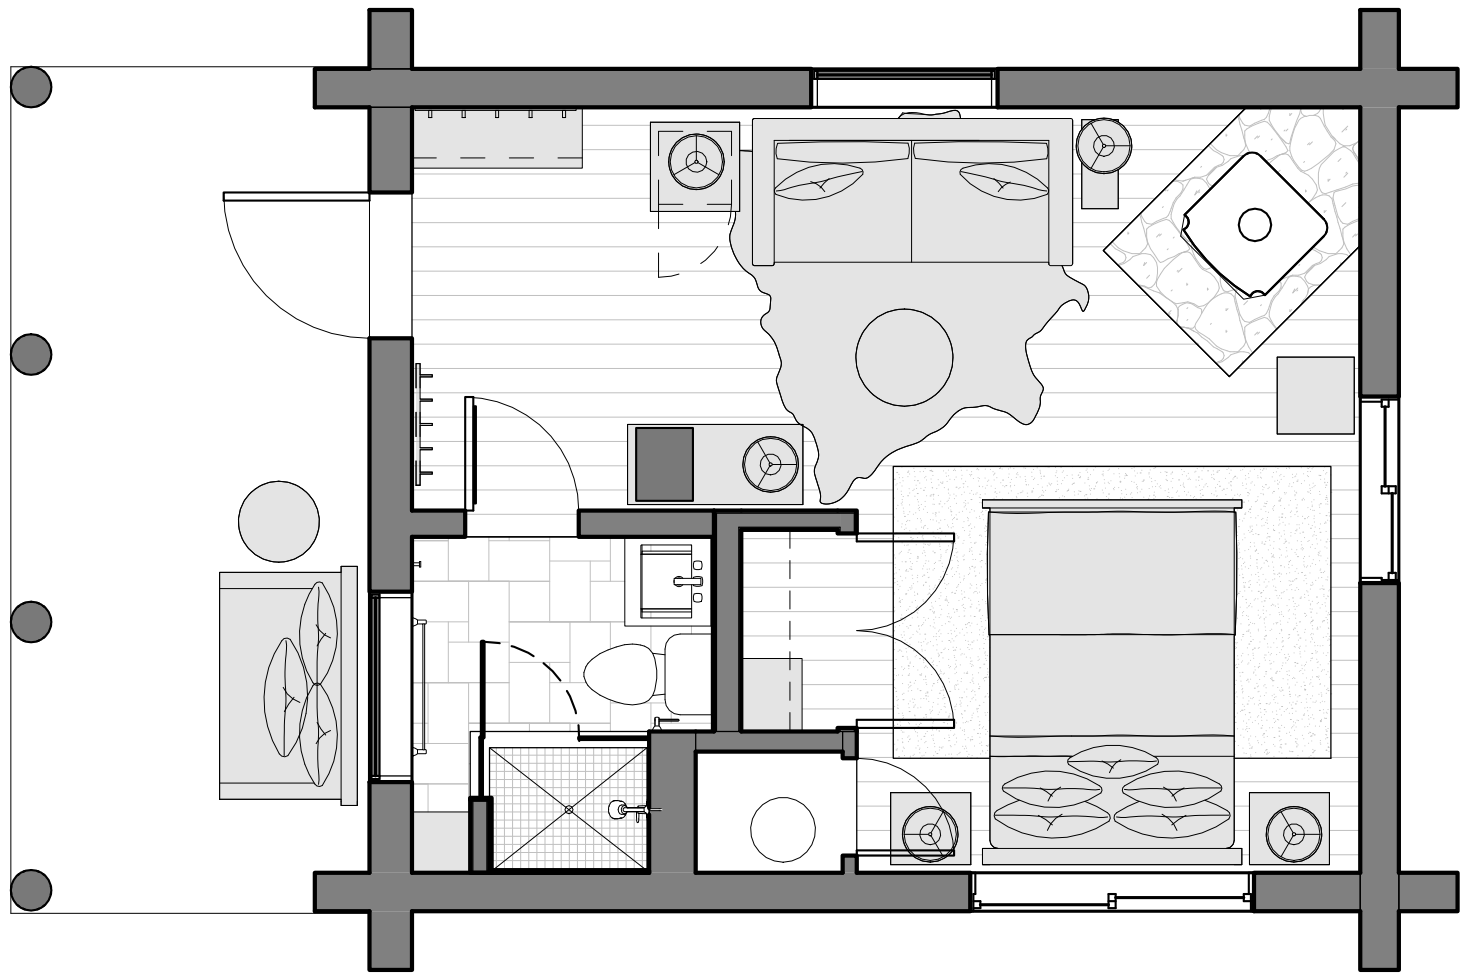

Known originally as the ranch’s “Ice House,” Porcupine was built in the 1920s and delivers warmth to melt its former reputation. Here, history meets simplicity: a queen bed draped in wool, a soft cradle of woodstove, and a porch where reading and reflection overlook North Fork Creek. The air carries the scent of pine and wild sage, and each evening the creek’s steady song becomes a lullaby. Porcupine embodies Montana authenticity – quiet, enduring, and crafted with the care of generations who built their lives from the land.

Meadowlark

1 BEDROOM | 1 BATHROOM | SLEEPS 2

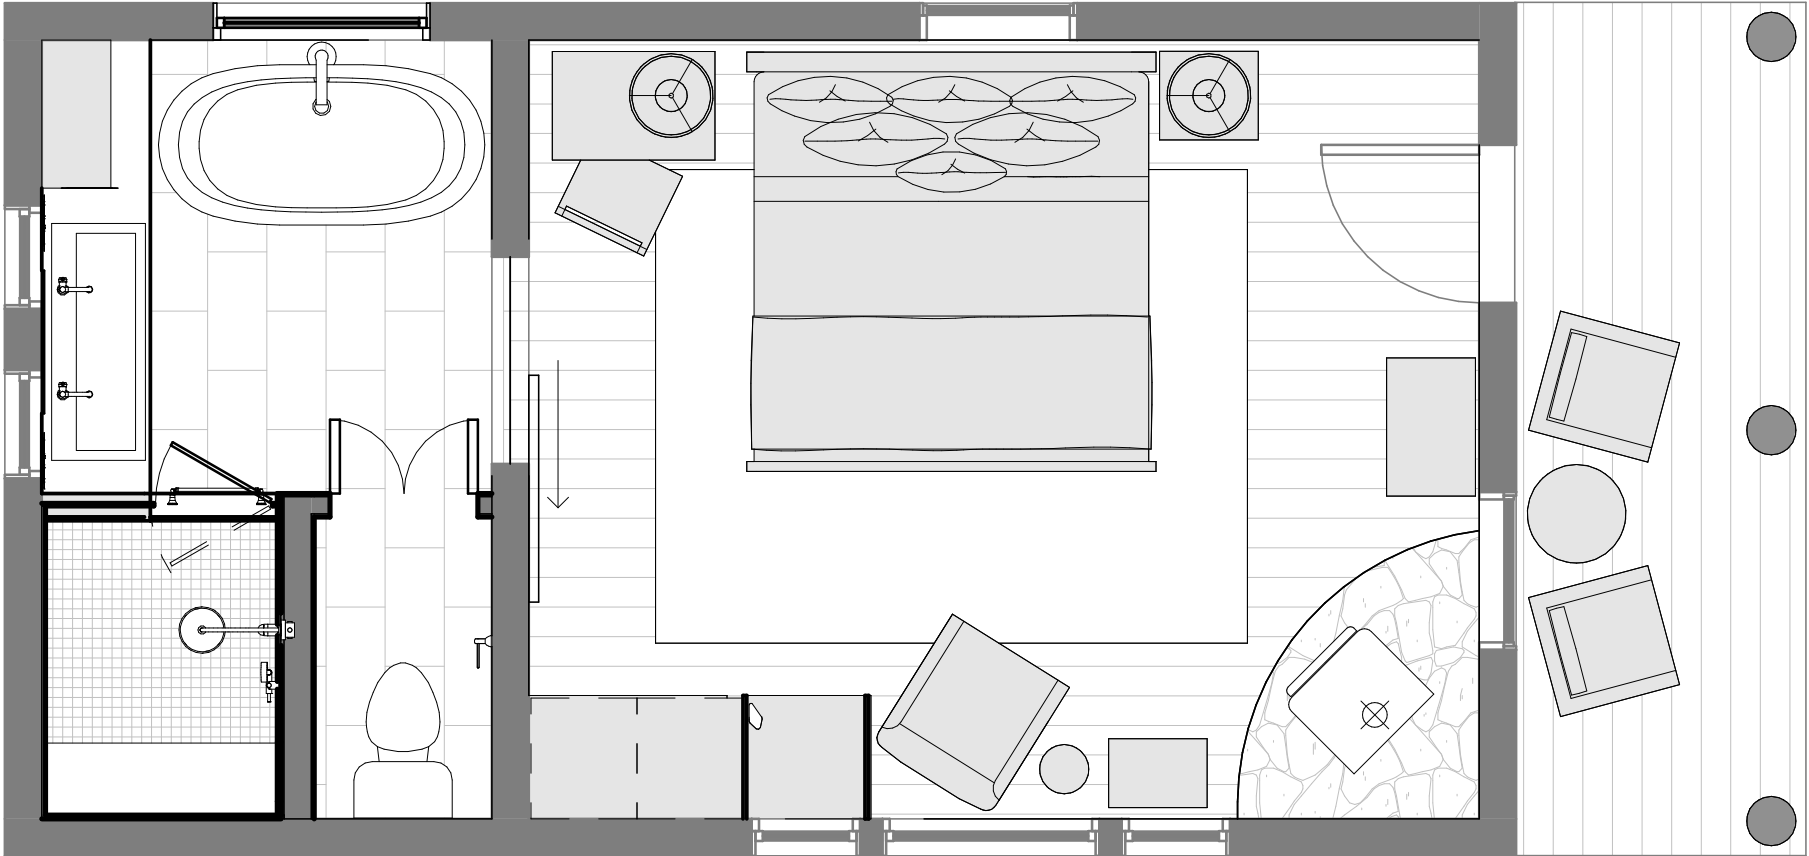

Built in 1915 as the original Gatekeeper’s Cabin, Meadowlark is one of the ranch’s most historic dwellings. Perched near the entrance to the property, it once welcomed wranglers and travelers on horseback. Today, it remains a symbol of Lone Mountain Ranch’s beginnings – a cozy, wood-paneled haven with a queen bed, wood stove, full bath with walk-in tile shower, and a private porch swing perfect for watching the valley come alive at dawn. The cabin’s namesake bird often sings nearby, its bright call echoing the spirit of Montana’s open fields and wide skies.

Named for the distinctive blue spruce, with its silvery-blue needles that shimmer in mountain light, this serene cabin offers peaceful forest views.
